INTRODUCTION

This report consists of four sections which are introduction, problem, methodology and solution. In the introduction section the meaning of Facebook and what is Facebook addiction was discussed. Facebook is a social networking website intended to connect friends, family, and business associates. It enables users to present themselves in an online profile, accumulate "friends" who can post comments on each other's pages, and view each other's profiles. Nowadays Facebook has become a medium of communication among people. If we ask to common users about a Facebook addiction disorder, most of them will agree that something like this does not exist. This is because to those who realize that an addiction can exist, they will always try to avoid it. Furthermore Facebook addiction can cause negative side to the users such as loss of productivity, the inability to concentrate, the superficiality of friendships as well as isolation.

As for problem, we discussed about the problem faced because of Facebook addiction, as for methodology video was used to show some role play regarding Facebook addiction. The video also consist of an interview with a lecturer, to get his point of view concerning about Facebook addiction among students. Apart from that, a survey was done, by asking students or lecturers to list down what they think of Facebook. Last but not least in solution, it discussed about the outcome of the study based on the work that was done.

Facebook is a social networking website intended to connect friends, family, and business associates. Facebook enables its users to present themselves in an online profile, accumulate "friends" who can post comments on each other's pages, and view each other's profiles. Facebook members can also join virtual groups based on common interests, and learn each others' hobbies, interests and relationship status through the profiles.
