The involvement of accountants in corporate strategy in Malaysia: A stewardship theory perspective

Abstract

The purpose of the research is to ascertain the extent and nature of involvement in the formulation phase of corporate strategy in Malaysian public listed companies (PLCs). This is achieved using the triangulation approach consisting of survey questionnaires and interviews. The findings reveal that accountants in Malaysia are involved in the formulation phase of corporate strategy. At this stage, accountants appear to be discharging their stewardship role, and are involved even in the very initial stage of advising management with strategic proposals, directly helping to formulate proposals and even shaping the strategic framework, which ensures that only strategic proposals that lie within the current context of strategy are submitted and deliberated.

Author keywords

Accountant, Corporate governance, Corporate strategy, Interview, Malaysia, Management, Public listed companies

References (77)

Related documents

Economic rationality, strategy and the evaluation of management accounting practices: The case of India

The role of accounting decisions in performing corporate strategy

Independent non-executive directors' strategic role – some evidence from Malaysia

View all related documents based on references
Find more related documents in Scopus based on:

Authors > Keywords