Abstract

View references \(25\)

The concept of education in Islam is markedly different from that seen from a secular Western viewpoint. For Muslims, teaching is considered as the noblest of professions, while the Prophet Muhammad is known to be the greatest educator of all time. The focus of this paper is to explore the meaning of the concept of murabbi (Muslim educator) and then to consider some selected pedagogical practices of the Prophet Muhammad which were used to guide and educate the early Muslim community. It is hoped that the pragmatic and spiritual nature of the Holy Prophet's pedagogical practices will serve as a role model and an inspiration and for both Muslim and non-Muslim teachers and educators in today's world and the the world of the future, inshallah.
