Alias Abdullah graduated with a PhD in Regional and Environmental Design (Specialization in GIS and Spatial Planning & Decision Support System) in 1995 from Kumamoto University, Japan. He is a professor and professional planner and was a former dean at the Kulliyah of Architecture and Environmental Design and Research Management Centre, International Islamic University Malaysia. His research and consulting experiences in related areas cover more than 200 topics, and he has presented over 200 papers and over 50 books, chapters in books and manuscripts. He has served as editor for various local and international journals related to the built environment. His research interests are within the areas of decision analysis and management, urban analysis and municipality management, disaster management, affordable housing studies, maqasid alsyariah and Islamic compliance in urban planning and environment, tourism studies, water environmental studies, and 3D urban simulation and modelling. He is affiliated with various professional bodies, local and international, as a member, and has held such positions as President, Council Member and advisor of the Malaysian Institute of Planners and the Commonwealth Institute of Planners.

Norzalifa Zainal Abidin is an Assistant professor in the Department of Applied Arts and Design at the Kulliyah of Architecture and Environmental Design, International Islamic University Malaysia (IIUM). Her doctorate studied the link between Islamic Arts and the interior decorative elements in the traditional heritage mosques, while her Bachelors (Honours) and postgraduate diploma in Architecture were obtained at the University of Central England in Birmingham, United Kingdom. She also received a postgraduate diploma in Islamic Studies from IIUM. She currently teaches and researches on Asian Cultural Heritage, Islamic Arts and Architecture, Space Planning Design and Design Methodology. She was a consultant for a recent large green mosque in Malaysia and is currently active in reactivating the arts of the Orang Asli indigenous people in Malaysia through community engagement projects.

Siti Norzaini Zainal Abidin is a senior lecturer at First City University College where she leads the Master of Design Management program. She is also a co-founder of SNor Interior Design. Her latest contribution, the paper 'Strategic Daylight Visualization for the Green Building Process: Integrating Optimization Into An Airport Terminal Design With Skylights', obtained her the best student paper award for ConVR in December 2016 at Regal Kowloon, Hong Kong organised by The Hong Kong University of Science and Technology. Her research interests include passive design in green building, integrated design process and daylighting in airport design.

Nor Zalina Harun is an associate professor and senior research fellow at the Institute of the Malay World and Civilisation (ATMA) at Universiti Kebangsaan Malaysia. She was Head of the Department of Landscape Architecture and Head of Research for the Faculty of Architecture and Environmental Design at International Islamic University Malaysia from 2013 to 2017 before joining ATMA.

Mansor Ibrahim is a professor and professional planner and was a former dean at the Kulliyah of Architecture and Environmental Design, International Islamic University Malaysia (IIUM). Before joining IIUM in 2001, he was Deputy Dean (Research and Publication) and Head of Department at the University Technology Malaysia. His research and consulting experiences in related areas cover more than 150 topics, and he has presented over 200 papers and produced over 50 books, chapters in books and manuscripts. He has served as editor for various local and international journals related to the built environment, for example as chief Editor for Planning Malaysia of the Malaysian Institute of Planners since 2010 and editor for Habitat International. He has been affiliated with various professional bodies, local and international, as a member, and held positions such as Vice President and Council Member of the Malaysian Institute of Planners since 2000, Affiliate Member of the New Zealand Planning Institute (NZPI) since 1977, Member of the International Association for Impact Assessment (IAIA), UNEP Member – Inter-Environmental Tech. Center (Osaka, Japan), Member EIA/EHIA Network

(WHO), Member of the Board of Town Planners, Reg. EIA Consultant (DOE 1 00036), Reg. EIA Consultant (NREB, S'wak), Member of the Malaysian Nature Society, and Member of the International Council of Museums (ICOM).

Zumahiran Kamaruddin completed her PhD thesis on traditional Malay woodcarving at UTM, and served as the Head of Department of Applied Arts at IIUM for five years until 2014. She is known for her research in urban heritage, Malay craftsmanship and Malay architecture, with a focus on timber heritage and carvings. She recently supervised postgraduate studies on Islamic art and heritage.

Shireen Jahn Kassim is an associate professor at the Faculty of Architecture and Environmental Design, International Islamic University Malaysia. As a senior academic and a practitioner, she has been teaching in the areas of tropical architecture, critical regionalism, theory of architecture, sustainable and energy-conscious design, and environmental services for more than two decades. More recently, her research has centered on developing theoretical frameworks for identity expressions, the vernacular for urban typologies, and the development of new forms of computational technology for the process of disseminating architectural heritage. She has written a range of books and various papers on these subject areas. As an advisor to government bodies, she has led an advisory and steering committee coordinated by the Construction Industry Development Board Malaysia (CIDB) and Public Works Department (JKR) for the development, enhancement, and implementation of an integrated carbon-based sustainable building rating assessment system for the tropics, mainly for government and commercial buildings in Malaysia. She sits on the editorial board of Elsevier's peer-reviewed International Journal of the Sustainable Built Environment and is a member of the Scientific Committee for the annual International CONVR conference series.

Noor Hanita Abdul Majid is currently an associate professor and Head of the Architecture Department at the Kulliyah of Architecture and Environmental Design, International Islamic University Malaysia. She studied at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln and received a Bachelors in Architecture and then a Masters in Architecture. She pursued her doctorate at Universiti Teknologi Malaysia (UTM). Her research interests cover architectural building design, heritage and conservation, and interior environment design. She has received several awards, for instance Veritas Awards of Excellence. She has produced more than 30 articles and writings in these areas. She can be reached at hanita@iium.edu.my.

Norwina Mohd Nawawi (PhD) is an associate professor, in the Department of Architecture, Kulliyyah of Architecture and Environmental Design (KAED), International Islamic University Malaysia (IIUM). Prior to this, she was with the Public Works Department and the Ministry of Health Malaysia. She is a fellow of the Malaysian Institute of Architects and a representative of the Institute at the Union of International Architect-Public Health Group Work Programme (UIA-PHG), UIA-Architecture for All-Region IV and Committee for Social Responsibility for the Asian Council of Architects (ARCASIA). With her understanding of the gaps and different worldviews throughout Asia, at IIUM she taught and researched, among other areas, the history and theory of architecture in the Asian region.

Elias Salleh is an emeritus professor and professional architect who has served in a range of academic roles in local public universities since 1973, namely in the departments of architecture at UTM, UUM, UPM, and UKM, and is currently a senior professor in IIUM. His PhD focused on the prevalence and environmental performance of tropical urban canyons in the city. He undertook his postgraduate studies in building science at the University of Sydney and a doctorate in energy and environment at the AA Graduate School of Architecture London.

Shaiful Nadzri Shamsudin is currently an architect in practice and runs his own interior design company, SNor Interior Design, in Petaling Jaya, Malaysia. He obtained his first degree from University Sains Malaysia Penang. He continued his studies in Scotland and obtained his Masters in Urban Design from Glasgow School of Art, Mackintosh School of Architecture, University of Glasgow, Scotland. He worked with a Scottish architectural firm, Comprehensive Design Pt Ltd., in Glasgow from 1999 to 2000. In Kuala Lumpur he began his architectural work by joining an established international architectural firm called Jurubena Bertiga International under the mentorship of the famous architect Dato Hj Ar Baharudin Abu Kassim. He then continued working with Atsa Architect Sdn Bhd for 12 years before starting his own practice in 2015.

Nurul Syala Abdul Latip graduated with a Bachelors of Architecture (Hons.) from Universiti Teknologi Malaysia (1999) and has a Masters of Built Environment (Sustainable Environment) from the University of New South Wales (2002) and a PhD in Built Environment (Architecture) from the University of Nottingham, UK (2011).

She is currently a senior lecturer in the Department of Architecture, Universiti Sains Islam Malaysia. She has been at the forefront of promoting a more sustainable outlook to urban development, particularly related to urban design and heritage. She is currently involved in urban design advisory works such as development of the Urban Image Guidelines for Jabatan Perancangan Bandar dan Desa Malaysia, Urban Design for Azlan Malaysia Masterplan, the Urban Design guidelines for Bako Sarawak Masterplan Project, the Heritage Trail Masterplan for Kuala Lumpur and the Universal Design Masterplan for Petaling Jaya.

This book explores how Malaysia, as a multicultural modern nation, has approached issues of nationalism and regionalism in terms of physical expression of the built environment. Ever since the nation's post-Colonial era, architects and policy makers have grappled with the theoretical and practical outcomes of creating public architecture that effectively responds to traditions, nationhood and modernity.

The authors compile and analyze prevailing ideas and strategies, present case studies in architectural language and form, and introduce the reader to tensions arising between a nationalist agenda and local 'regionalist' architectural language. These dichotomies represent the very nature of multicultural societies and issues with identity; a challenge that various nations across the globe face in a changing environment. This topical and pertinent volume will appeal to students and scholars of urban planning, architecture and the modern city.

Shireen Jahn Kassim is both an academic and practitioner of architecture, and is currently Assistant Professor at the International Islamic University, Malaysia.

Norwina Mohd Nawawi is Associate Professor at the International Islamic University, Malaysia.

Mansor Ibrahim is Professor at the International Centre for Education in Islamic Finance, Malaysia.
