Welcome to the first issue of 2010's IIUM News Bulletin.

2010 has been declared as the Year of Innovation. Teachers for example, have to find ways to bring about innovative teaching and learning into the classroom. Through innovative teaching, teachers not only meet the expectations of today's demanding learners, but would also facilitate the discovery of potentials within themselves that might not have been tapped without a serious consideration of innovation in teaching.

Innovative thinking in doing things can end up becoming a culture. Innovation on a personal level whether in teaching, learning and carrying out duties generally, does not have to be on a grand scale. A small increment of innovation by an individual in his or her professional capacity can only bring nothing but good.
