The Interdisciplinary Terminology of the Arabic Syntactic Thought A Fundamental Review

Dr. Adham Muhammad Ali Hamawiya

Assistant Professor

Department of Fundamental and Interdisciplinary Studies
Kulliyah of Islamic Revealed Knowledge and Human Sciences
International Islamic University Malaysia

Abstract

Each thought is expressed in by a language, and both combine in a relationship makes one develops in the development of the other. Thus, in Arabic, syntactic thought has its language which formulates it to be shown precisely. This syntactic language includes regarding of syntactic inference and its methodical principles, in addition to a shared terminology with other Islamic sciences because of the interdisciplinary nature of the Islamic thought in general. Therefore, there are theologian, fundamentalist and logician linguists. Accordingly, by a descriptive method; this paper aims to following this interdisciplinary terminology of the Arabic syntactic thought with a comparison to examples from the rational sciences of the Islamic thought.

Keywords: Islamic thought, Arabic, Syntax, Terminology, Interdisciplinary.
