Whether the US economy? This is the biggest conundrum for the year 2009. Last Friday's announcement of 3.5% GDP growth for the third quarter is viewed by some economists and analysts as the Obama administration 'treat' for the US people to savour as they prepared for the Halloween celebration.

While to others, including the Nobel Prize-winning economist Joseph E. Stiglitz, that impressive number is more like a 'trick' that cannot be sustained in the coming year. So that leaves the not-so-passive bystanders like us to wonder whether it is really a 'trick or treat'.

It is an undeniable fact, the US economy, as the world's biggest
