Assalamualaikum wrt wbt

All praises are due to Allah swt, the Lord of the Universe. May His peace and blessings be upon our beloved Prophet Muhammad (saw), his companions, descendants and all those who follow his steps. I would like to welcome everyone to the International Conference on Islamic Social Finance: Pandemic Crisis and Possible Solutions (ISFPCPS 2020) organised by the IIUM Institute of Islamic Banking and Finance (IiBF), International Islamic University Malaysia. This conference is indeed, timely and important given the fact that the world is still struggling to fight the COVID-19 pandemic, and due to its unprecedented nature, efforts are being intensified to find the solutions to the many socio-economic and financial issues resulting from the pandemic.

In recent years, there is a growing interest in new areas of Islamic finance, especially in Islamic social finance which commonly includes the topics of waqf, zakat, charity and Islamic microfinance. The increasing interests are also in line with the current economic situation due to the COVID-19 pandemic which has an uneven impact on the society, affecting the B40 income group the most. Despite the rapid growth of the Islamic finance industry in the world today, I believed there are a lot more that needed to be done to ensure the Islamic financial institutions are actively addressing the emerging socio-economic issues as well as ensuring the effectiveness or impact of their operations. Islamic financial institutions should step in to develop Islamic social finance products and services in order to realise their full potentials while simultaneously achieving the Maqasid al-Shari'ah as well as the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs).

I would like to congratulate the IiBF for taking the noble initiatives towards this effort. Congratulations to the IiBF team for the smooth organisation of the conference. Thank you to all who have contributed to the organisation of this conference, especially the generous sponsors and participants. Looking forward to all the brilliant presentations as well as creative ideas to up-lift the Islamic social finance forward, and provide sustainable solutions to main problems facing the world today. I wish you a fruitful deliberation during this two-day conference. May Allah swt bless and guide us in all our endeavours.

FOREWORD FROM DEAN OF IIUM INSTITUTE OF ISLAMIC BANKING AND FINANCE (IiBF)

Assoc. Prof. Dr.
Salina Hj. Kassim
Dean of IiBF

Alhamdulillah, all praises are due to Allah swt for providing me an opportunity to put down a few words in welcoming all of you to the International Conference on Islamic Social Finance: Pandemic Crisis and Possible Solutions (ISFPCPS 2020). In the wake of the COVID-19 pandemic which erupted in December 2019, the world has been significantly affected socially and economically. The pandemic has affected almost all countries throughout the globe, with the global economy now is at the brink of a recession. Amid the bleak economic prospects and due to the unprecedented nature of the situation, many are grappling for measures to avert the economic meltdown. What seemed to be more like a health crisis has now transformed into a full-blown global economic and financial crisis which continued to deepen. A pertinent question to ask is “How can Islamic finance contribute in providing the solutions to the current economic and financial difficulties bring about by the COVID-19 pandemic?”

Amid the backdrop of this extremely challenging situation, the IIUM Institute of Islamic Banking and Finance has taken the initiative to organize the ISFPCPS2020, which aims to gather the ideas from relevant stakeholders including scholars, researchers and practitioners in the Islamic banking and finance industry. The conference will deliberate on these issues and pave the way forward for a more meaningful role of Islamic finance in addressing the socio-economic problems arising from the COVID-19 pandemic. Indeed, it is timely and essential to conduct an in-depth analysis of the situation and re-assess the role of Islamic finance in solving the various emerging issues so that effective and constructive recommendations can be put forward in addressing the related issues.

It is my hope that the ISFPCPS2020 will be beneficial to all participants in finding the solutions to the economic and financial issues facing the world today due to the COVID-19 pandemic. I would like to take this opportunity to record my sincere gratitude to all who have supported us in organizing this conference, especially our generous sponsors Mori Hamada & Matsumoto, Bank Kerjasama Rakyat Malaysia Berhad, and Bank Islam Malaysia Berhad. My sincere and heartfelt gratitude to all IiBF staff for their dedication, efforts and commitment in organizing this important conference and making it a success.

May Allah s.w.t bless us and continue to guide all our efforts, ameen.

FOREWORD FROM CHAIRMAN OF CONFERENCE

Bismillahirrahmannirrahim

Assalammualaikum Warrahmatullahi Wabarakatuh

Alhamdulillah, all praises be to Allah the Most Gracious and the Most Merciful. I have the pleasure to welcome all of the participants around the world to the first IIUM Institute of Islamic Banking and Finance (IiBF) online-conference “International Conference on Islamic Social Finance: Pandemic Crisis and Possible Solutions (ISFPCPS 2020)”. I believed that this conference will be beneficial to the ummah, currently facing hard times due to the unprecedented pandemic.

The COVID-19 pandemic has caught the whole civilisation off-guard. It changed the world in just one night and has caused tremendous suffering to many. All economic activities were forced to shut down that resulted in an immediate economic crisis. Employees are losing their jobs while employers are struggling to remain in the industry. Many businesses were greatly affected especially the SMEs’. Solutions like social distancing and isolations policies are flattening the pandemic curve but steepening the recession curve which led to the financial crisis. Governments are forced to introduced stimulus incentives in order to assist their citizen. Some financial measures need to be introduced immediately to combat the financial crisis.

Realising this issue, IiBF believed that it is a high time for the Islamic finance industry to revisit the potentials of Islamic social finance. Apart from its undeniable role in the industry, Islamic social finance can strive further, if such potentials were discussed upon. Islamic social finance instrument such as Waqf, Zakat, Sadaqat is believed can alleviate poverty and can bridge the economic gap between the rich and the poor. Therefore, it is the responsibility of the academics as well as the industry to gather upon and discuss this matter in our e-conference. The potential of each instrument will be discussed and acknowledged in this e-conference.

I strongly believed that this e-conference will engage a fruitful discussion among the scholars and eventually a solution to the current pandemic crisis will be materialised. Insha Allah.

I would also like to take this opportunity to express my deepest gratitude and heartfelt thanks to the rest of my IiBF team who have been very helpful in ensuring that this program is a success. Thank you and may Allah bless all of you. Wassalam.

Legal Environment for Islamic Social Finance – Perspectives from Japan

Islamic finance intrinsically involves social and ethical values and has in fact operated to address social issues often in a charitable form, and more recently, under the principles of Value-based Intermediation (“VBI”) promoted by Bank Negara Malaysia. Conventional finance, on the other hand, had long focused its analysis on value, in the sense of financial performance. However, considerations for environmental, social and governance issues are increasingly integrated into investment and finance decisions by various legally non-binding guidelines in Japan. Application of these guidelines are not necessarily limited to conventional finance and they arguably operate as a guiding light for evaluating and monitoring the social impact and to encourage wider use of Islamic finance products, not limited to charitable instruments, for further growth of the Islamic social finance.

For Islamic finance, social wellbeing or sustainable development goals are compatible with, or rather rooted in, the principles or higher objectives of Sharia. In Japan, on the other hand, growing awareness of sustainability and decarbonisation as well as quality of corporate governance are the driving forces for the integration of ESG issues into investment behaviour. The Principles for Responsible Institutional Investors published by the Financial Services Agency promote “consideration of sustainability; mid to long term sustainability including ESG factors” as one of core components of “stewardship responsibility” expected for institutional investors. The ESG considerations have been expanded into the “Green Bond Guideline” and “Green Loan and Sustainability Linked Loan Guideline” published by the Ministry of Environment. These principles are largely based on the international guidelines such as Green Bond Principles published by the International Capital Market Association. These domestic initiatives in Japan are further developed by the Ministry of the Environment in its report on “General Idea for Impact Finance” published in July 2020 with a view to advancing the ECG finance/investment as a part of core business of Japanese financial institutions.

The above initiatives in Japan have many similarities with VBI principles of impact-based risk management, such as clear identification of intended impact-based risk and outcomes, evaluation and measurement, monitoring and reporting. Technically, impact finance/investments in Japan have been put into practice in different forms such as green bonds, general corporate finance, and tokumei kumiai that formed a basis for certain social impact bonds issued in Japan. These recent development of legal and commercial framework for social impact investment in Japan may hopefully provide some ideas for further development of Islamic social finance in and outside Japan.

The Role of Islamic Financial Institutions During Covid-19

After the sharp contraction of -17.1% year-on-year GDP growth in the second quarter of 2020, Malaysia's economy is expected to recover in the second half of the year. This is premised on the signs of recovery in consumption trend and macroeconomic indicators following re-opening of business activities in stages. However, the situation is not out of the woods yet given the challenges linked to the Covid-19 pandemic and its adverse impact. According to MIDF Research, the resurgence of COVID-19 cases remains as a key downside risk to growth outlook both for Malaysia and the global economy. While it is certain that the aftermath of the COVID-19 pandemic and lockdowns have severely hurt economic activities and will be felt for a long while, one wonders what the role of Islamic finance could be in countering the effects of the outbreak. Specifically, what Islamic Financial Institutions can do to support the economies of the respective countries in which they operate.

Today's International Conference on Islamic Social Finance: Pandemic Crisis and Possible Solutions, emerged as a profound discussion about the social instruments that the Islamic financial sector can offer for the well-being of global society. Islamic finance can be part of the COVID-19 responses through a range of financing instruments and various social tools. COVID-19 is also shifting the dynamics in the industry and the outbreak may create new opportunities for Islamic finance markets by accelerating trends such as digitalization, socially responsible investing, and sustainability.

Apart from payment moratorium, Zakat, Waqf and Sadaqah are immensely needed to create a positive atmosphere for the changing ecosystem. These Islamic tools also can be leveraged to bridge financing gaps as well as promoting financial, social and economic inclusion. Moreover, zakat can be an important component of national support programmes. Waqf endowments can, in many contexts, be important contributors to long-term resilience. Financial or non-financial assets such as land or buildings are permanently dedicated to social purposes. This can be an important way for stakeholders to contribute to social infrastructure.

Shared prosperity is the national agenda to allow Malaysia to achieve a sustainable economic growth paired with a fair and equitable distribution of wealth for all, thus enabling everyone to be involved in the economic chain activities. The values of "giving" to the needy person will give a positive impact to the society at large in the long-run. With this in mind, the big gap between the high-income group and lower-income groups can be minimized and eventually bridged when the spirit of shared prosperity is upheld.

Aligning the financing activities with the Sustainable Development Goals (SDG) or Value-based Intermediation (VBI) would also serve as a significant opportunity for Islamic banks. The COVID-19 pandemic makes such initiatives more urgent than ever.

All permissible Islamic financial products such as sukuk are generally asset-backed, ethical, share risks equitably and subject to good governance. These characteristics mean that Islamic finance is well suited to the alignment with the SDGs and not just serve as an important source of long-term capital like Sukuk which is used to support the business and economy.

Additionally, Islamic banks should be up to the challenge and rethink their roles and vision in societies they serve to offer solutions to the Government, private sector and non-governmental organization (NGOs) so that it can continue to become one of the most important catalysts for development of society, especially during these challenging times.

السَّلَامُ عَلَيْكُمْ وَرَحْمَةُ اللَّهِ وَبَرَكَاتُهُ and Greetings to all.

Dear Participants,

The COVID-19 pandemic has significantly impacted the way we live, our livelihood and how we do business. The nation is facing a crisis like never before. What started as a health crisis has quickly evolved into an economic crisis at an alarming rate and magnitude. The effects are still unfolding, and ramifications of the pandemic can only be seen until the situation stabilises and a vaccine found.

In a rapidly changing world, COVID-19 has also increased social needs and decreasing resources, hence elevating the demand in providing support of relief, designing projects or programmes to enable equitable recovery as well as building systems for long-term resilience.

I am pleased to say that Social Finance has been the heart of Bank Islam Malaysia Berhad (“Bank Islam” or “the Bank”) since the Bank aspires to be the leading bank for Social Finance in its 2021 corporate goals. It is a sustainable approach to strategically offer banking products, services and initiatives beyond traditional banking, which delivers social as well as environmental impact and at the same time, economic returns.

Our mission is to help recipients remain strong and sustainable in facing various challenges, as well as nurturing them to becoming more bankable. The efforts given are ultimate to catalyse further and sustain economic recovery especially in this trying time. At the same time, continuously strengthen the position of Islamic Finance.

Therefore, we are delighted to be part of the International Conference on Islamic Social Finance: Pandemic Crisis and Possible Solutions (ISFPCPS 2020). A warm congratulations to International Islamic University Malaysia (“IIUM”) - Institute of Islamic Banking and Finance (“IIBF”) for organising the event and publishing the e-book that will enable easier and quicker access to information. We hope that this e-book would instil the knowledge of Islamic social finance among students and academicians as well as provide useful reference material for teaching purposes.

Recently, with the pandemic crisis, Bank Islam has been given the trust by the Government of Malaysia to introduce iTEKAD Micro financing Programme – a vital part of the Prihatin Rakyat Economic Stimulus Package – as an additional measure in assisting B40 and asnaf-owned microenterprises in generating sustainable income and achieving financial resilience. Undertaken in collaboration with Majlis Agama Islam Wilayah Persekutuan (“MAIWP”) and SME Corporation Malaysia (“SME Corp Malaysia”), the programme involves providing micro-financing facility and zakat (“tithe”) contribution for the purchase of business equipment. Recipients also receive training with monitoring of their performance and success.

Alhamdulillah, since its launch in May, the applications that we have received is within our expectation. We know that the numbers of applications will continue to grow, in view that COVID 19 is still beyond control.

Another engine of Social Finance Agenda in Bank Islam is our charity crowdfunding platform aptly named as Sadaqa House. With a collection of more than RM5.0 million in September 2020 and eight civil society organisation partners since its launch in 2018, the philanthropic fund plays a strategic and catalytic role to promote social inclusivity, through four focus areas which include healthcare, environment, community empowerment and education.

Bank Islam is committed to continuing spearheading the integration of commercial and social finance initiatives in meeting the higher goals of Maqasid Shariah in the economy. We believe this can only be achieved through the trust and support given by various partners, including IIUM and IIBF. May this collaboration receive Allah's greatest blessings.

Thank you.
