Abstract

This study seeks to highlight the implications of governance and reporting practices in ensuring accountability and building donors "padding-size- 4-x display- -inline-block" style= "background: var(--highlight-yellow) ; color: inherit; ">trust in Waqf Institutions (WIs). Data gathered through the survey are analyzed using PLS-SEM technique. The conceptual model was developed based on the critical review of the past literature. Among the three proxies of board attributes, only board ability has a significant positive impact on accountability. Voluntary information disclosure has a significant positive impact on accountability. Accountability has a significant impact on building "padding-size- 4-x display- -inline-block" style= "background: var(--highlight-yellow) ; color: inherit; ">trust in waqf management. Results provided by the study advocate for the adoption of formal reporting and improved governance mechanisms to enhance donors' "padding-size- 4-x display- -inline-block" style= "background: var(--highlight-yellow) ; color: inherit; ">trust in WIs. © 2020 World Scientific Publishing Company.
